

NAME _____
CIS440

Quiz 2
14 February 2020

1. What is the swap partition used for on a Linux file system?
2. What are ext4, fat32, NTFS, and ufs examples of?
3. The Unix file system is organized as a tree structure, what is the name of the directory at the base of the tree denoted by /
4. In what directory would a user's personal files be stored?
5. What directory would you mount a usb stick to to plug it into the file system?
6. True or False, directories are files in Unix?
7. What do the files . and .. represent in each directory?
8. What command lists the files in a directory and what command tells you what directory you are in?
9. If I want to edit the permissions of a file named surprise.txt so that only the owner of the file could read, write, or execute it and no one else could do anything with it, what must I type into the terminal (issue the exact command)
10. What files are kept in the /etc and /var directories?